

Oral Comments
Guam
18 June 2007

Cerilla P Skvaril

I do not understand why the United States is setting us up as a target, or creating a fear within the Chamorro people. We are a peaceful people. We have always accepted the protection of the United States, and now we do not understand the abuse of power that they are doing to this island. The Marianas has the largest trench in the world. The largest and deepest. Should the United States destroy our trench it will not only affect Japan, Polynesia, Australia and Hawaii and all the small little atolls, and Southeast Asia and China, it will destroy the whole world. And create and unbalance in the filtering system of the Pacific Ocean. Our trade winds are very strong and what comes around goes around. I have always believed that the United States is not a greedy country and that it really cares about the people that it protects. I am sad to see what it has become.